STIMSON PLANS TO BACK LEAGUE IN JAPAN AFFAIR

Reaches Decision, Whether or Not U. S. is Represented

TOKIO IS SO ADVISED

Briand Announces U. S. Will Be Invited to Take Part

By Pierce Miller
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—Tenaciously holding to the American Government's purpose of using its moral might to avert war between China and Japan, Secretary of State Stimson prepared today to support the council of the League of Nations whether or not this government is represented on the council.

There is some question whether this government would want its observer, Prentiss Gilbert, present over a serious objection of the Japanese Government, even though a unanimous vote of the full council is not required.

An air of optimism pervaded the Department that the dispute between China and Japan in Manchuria would be settled by mediation between the two governments. It was certain that Japanese Ambassador Dehuchi here, was using his good offices to convince his government that American representation at Geneva could not be interpreted as endangering Japanese interests.

He also assured Tokyo this government did not intend participating in any penalties provided by the League for recalcitrant member nations. Both China and Japan are members of the League. The Japanese delegate is a permanent member of the League council.

By Frederick K. Abbott
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
GENEVA, Oct. 16.—Although admitting failure in overcoming the objections of Japan, Aristide Briand formally announced today before the council of the League of Nations that the United States would be invited to take part in any action by the League in the Manchurian crisis.

The veteran French foreign minister, who is acting as chairman of the council, made it clear that America will be invited merely as an observer. "As I have pointed out," he said, "this is not a matter of inviting a new member enjoying the same rights and privileges as a regular member, but merely as observer on a special case."

"Therefore we are convinced it is nothing more than a matter of procedure, an exchange of views orally rather than in writing."

Indict Bishop Cannon In District of Columbia

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 16.—Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, today was indicted by the District Court of Columbia Grand Jury on a charge of violating the Federal Corrupt Practices Act. The indictment contained ten counts.

Miss Ada L. Burroughs, Richmond, Va., secretary-treasurer of his 1928 anti-Smith campaign in Virginia, was jointly accused with the Bishop in the indictment.

Leo A. Rover, United States District Attorney for the District of Columbia, now must set a date for their trial in the District of Columbia Supreme Court.

Representative George Holden Pinkham, Republican of Massachusetts, made the charge that Bishop Cannon had violated the Corrupt Practices Act. He claimed specifically that he had misappropriated $65,300, E. C. Jameson, New York insurance broker had donated to his Virginia campaign. The Senate Investigations Committee has contended that Bishop Cannon reported to the House only the receipt of $17,000 of Jameson's contribution.

Bishop Cannon has denied Pinkham's charge, and countered it last June 2 by instituting a damage suit in the local court asking $500,000 for Pinkham's alleged reference to him as a "shameless violator of the Corrupt Practices Act."

ONE THOUSAND SCOUTS TO SEE FOOTBALL GAME

Pass Received by Bucks Co. Council for Lehigh-Princeton Fray

ON NOVEMBER SEVENTH

Thomas Ross, of Doylestown, chairman of the activities committee of Bucks County Council, Boy Scouts, received the following letter from Asa S. Bushnell, graduate manager of Athletics of the Princeton University Athletic Association.

"I am very pleased to send you, enclosed herewith, a pass for Scout executive William F. Livermore, Jr., and 1000 men and boys of the Bucks Co. Boy Scout Council for the Lehigh-Princeton football game in Princeton on Saturday, November 7th."

This notice will be delightedly read by the many hundreds of boys and men who are in the Boy Scout movement in Bucks County.

The game each year is a hard fought contest and is enjoyed by all those who attend.

In speaking of the coming football game at Princeton, Thomas Ross said, "The activities committee makes it possible for our boys each year to see a major college game so that they may get a picture of the environment surrounding college and inspiring the boys to strive for higher education. The sportsmanship at the college athletic contest also trains our boys in fair play and team work."

When Mask of State Dropped

International debts, the unemployment situation and the gold standard were all forgotten for the nonce when some witticism (which, unfortunately, cannot be recorded here) gave these three men, a premier, a foreign minister and a visiting diplomat, an opportunity to drop their masks of stately dignity and enjoy a hearty laugh. Premier Pierre Laval, of France (left), and Foreign Minister Aristide Briand (right) are shown in this informal pose with British Foreign Secretary Lord Reading.

LEGISLATURE SESSION OF PA. IN LIMELIGHT

Petition Relative to Prohibition Among Important Items

"PROSPERITY BONDS"

By JOSEPH A. LOFTUS
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

HARRISBURG, Oct. 16.—Pennsylvania's coming extraordinary session of the legislature, by virtue of the gigantic economic problem it will attempt to solve and the widespread attention it already has evoked, lays claim at the moment to the topmost position in the State's political discussion heap.

Gov. Gifford Pinchot and his plans are occupying the very apex of that heap. At the present time, however, mention of the executive's name and those plans all have to do with the extra session he is calling. Gossip of his personal aspirations, if any, in the national political arena, has been switched to a siding temporarily while other topics affecting the body politic generally have been side-tracked altogether.

The session convenes November 9th. If Governor Pinchot expects to realize his hope of adjournment by Christmas, political leaders say, he may have to make that limitation an absolute edict. Letters of "whereas" and "be it resolved" that would keep the gears pounding in legislative chambers beyond the advent of the new year have been finding their way to the executive's sanctum with increasing rapidity in recent weeks.

Not the least important among these is a petition having to do with prohibition. This petition would have repeal of the drastic Snyder enforcement act come before the legislature. Another petition asks enactment of an election reform measure, aftermath to the heated Allegheny County fight. Taxes, too, would be arranged to suit everybody.

After that, the session would rate the term "extraordinary." One practical politician here made the dry observation that the alternative would be to lay all the petitions end to end—"and let them stay there."

"Even should all discussion be confined solely to the primary motive for summoning the legislators—unemployment—Governor Pinchot will find no dearth of advice and counsel and opposition, whatever legislation he may have in mind to rid the Commonwealth of enforced idleness and to blot out destitution and hunger."

A proposal to float a "prosperity bond" issue has been branded illegal by the Democratic State Executive Committee. That group's suggestion is the direct refund of some $20,000,000 to the various counties for local relief work. The money would be lifted from the Treasury's $70,000,000 and "recaptured" later. An additional recommendation is the slashing of salaries on the Hill.

It is forecast in some quarters that the "prosperity bond" issue proposal would meet with stiff opposition. A legal opinion determining the constitutionality of the issue probably will come first and then the battle will be on.

The proposal probably would be attacked from several angles, according to word passed around here. These angles are: "Who would buy the bonds?" "Could the State Sinking Fund Commission buy them?"

Another question coming in for attention is whether, if the Sinking Fund Commission bought the bonds, would the next Assembly approve the purchase or would such approval be necessary to avoid Sinking Fund bankruptcy.

OPEN FARM AND HOME SHOW MONDAY NIGHT

Newtown's Second Annual Exhibition in Readiness for Thousands

GREATER FLOOR SPACE

Following the county fair season comes the local farm products shows. Hundreds of these are being held throughout Pennsylvania.

Last year's show in Newtown was attended by about three thousand people. Encouraged by this response to their efforts, the Chamber of Commerce committee headed by Lewis W. Fitzgerald have planned for a more complete showing this year both of farm products and the commercial displays of Newtown merchants.

Arrangements have been made for more floor space both to accommodate the exhibits and to provide more aisle space for the guests.

Exhibits in the farm show section will include apples, corn, wheat, oats, rye, potatoes, squash, pumpkins, cabbage and eggs. County Agent Greenawald and R. P. Kester, former editor of the Pennsylvania Farmer, will award the ribbons. A new arrangement of these exhibits this year will it is expected add to their attractiveness.

The commercial exhibitors have arranged to display the most up-to-date features of their wares and services and much useful information can be obtained at their booths.

These shows tend to demonstrate the value to every member of a community of cooperation in the supply of each other's needs.

The Fred Wicke orchestra, which broadcasts regularly from a Philadelphia station, will furnish music and entertainment each evening.

The show will start on Monday, October 19 and continue for six nights on the second floor of the Bond garage building. Aside from a nominal admission fee of ten cents, no money may be spent at the show.

The community is invited to be the guest of the Newtown Chamber of Commerce and the exhibitors. The committee in charge includes Lewis W. Fitzgerald, W. F. Swayze, Frank E. Fabian, Roland Porter, Morris Savidge and W. E. Ledoom.

"BIG SHOTS" ESCAPE ARREST

Philadelphia, Oct. 16.—The "big shots" of Philadelphia's $5,000,000 rum ring escaped arrest and are hiding possibly in other States and Canada or Bermuda, it became known today when it was revealed that not a single arrest was made yesterday following the uncovering of the gigantic booze ring the night before. United States Attorney and prohibition agents however feel the rum ring has been broken up.

INVITE U. S. TO GENEVA

Geneva, Oct. 16.—Disregarding the continued opposition of Japan, the League of Nations Council today dispatched an official invitation to the United States to participate in its attempt to end the dispute between China and Japan in Manchuria. A reply was expected to be received before the Council meets again at 6 p. m. If the reply is favorable it was expected Prentiss Gilbert, American observer, would immediately take his place at the Council and formally inaugurate American participation in the deliberations.

STEAMER SENDS "S. O. S."

San Francisco, Oct. 16.—The Japanese steamer Yanin Maru, en route from Portland, Oregon, to Shanghai, sent out an S. O. S. early today, according to Mackay radio reports. The ship was in Alaskan waters about 3,500 miles from here, it was estimated. Radio advices stated the ship was sinking and asked that assistance be rushed to the ship. Advices stated water was pouring into the hold. The ship left Portland October 1st.

Large Class Initiated For Bucks Lodge of L. O. O. M.

A large class of candidates was initiated at the meeting of Bucks Lodge, No. 1159, Loyal Order of Moose, here, last evening. The initiatory work was effectively carried out by the degree team from Doylestown lodge.

The session was followed by presentation of entertainment features, and the serving of a lunch.

DR. KOHLER ADDRESSES BUCKS CO. PHYSICIANS

Stream Infection To Doctors

DINE AT HOSPITAL

SELLERSVILLE, Oct. 16.—Bucks County Medical Society held a meeting at the Grand View Hospital, Wednesday, with a very good attendance. Some of the lower-end members drove thirty-five miles to attend. The lecturer rewarded them very handsomely.

The president, Dr. William F. Weisel, Quakertown, was in charge and the minutes were recorded by the secretary, Dr. Anthony F. Myers, Blooming Glen.

Dr. Otto H. Strouse read a tentative copy of the revised constitution of the society for consideration. The society directed the committee to continue with its efforts and to report at the annual meeting at Doylestown in November.

John H. Kolmer, Md., professor of pathology and bacteriology in the Medical Department of the University of Pennsylvania, delivered an address on "Diagnosis and Treatment of Blood Stream Infection."

Dr. Kolmer is a fine lecturer and a perfect master of his subject. His splendid attitude and his mode of speech before a scientific audience proved very convincing and his language conveyed conviction and in the end his efforts were reflected very creditably as evidenced by the many queries offered by the fellow physicians. The address was a scientific treat. At the conclusion of the scientific program, the members tendered a rising vote of thanks to Dr. Kolmer for his splendid effort in behalf of the society.

At the conclusion of the program the nursing association invited the physicians and their guests to assemble in the dining room for dinner. The banquet was planned, prepared and served by the nurses. The results showed their training and tact in performing their work. Their efforts, the physicians realized, reflected very creditably upon their instructors.

"ALWAYS HAD WOMEN DRINKERS,"—MRS. BLACK

President of Pa. W. C. T. U.
Speaks at Johnstown
Convention

TELLS OF IMPROVEMENT

Three sessions a day, for five days with special group conference every morning, department dinner and breakfast conferences, good music, by prominent artists, convincing speakers, with all the accessories of flowers, banners and enthusiastic reports from the heads of the 29 departments of work carried on by the W. C. T. U., featured the State Convention, just closed at Johnstown.

The president, Mrs. Ella B. Black, of Beaverdale, voiced the sentiment of the nearly 400 accredited delegates and many visitors present, when she stated "Prohibition has been found to be the best method of dealing with the liquor traffic, all other laws have been tried and failed; we will stand for observance and enforcement of the 18th Amendment—not repeal."

"Under government control in Canada and Sweden, liquor drinking, crime and poverty have increased, facts prove this. We must stand for the constitution of the United States, and put on the whole armour of God."

"Cold business facts impelled many to work and vote for prohibition, prohibition looked like a good financial bargain and it has proved to be one. Surveys among business leaders show conclusively that three-fourths of the old liquor consumption has disappeared, followed by a tremendous decrease in poverty from drink, disappearance of 90 per cent or more of the old liquor cures and by a raised standard of living among the industrial community."

Mrs. Azuba Jones, state director of the evangelical department, who led the quiet hour every morning, urged the women to be diligent Bible students. "In our Moral Warfare" continued Mrs. Jones. "We are facing an utterly unscrupulous enemy with millions of money, any amount of brains and no more conscience than Satan himself! In Gods name we will defy them and declare we will have observance and enforcement—not repeal."

Mrs. Black said "we have always had women who drank liquor and in the old days in all cities women of no character and young girls who were hunting a 'thrill,' as they say today, went to the back room of saloons. The 'Chicago Tribune' of Feb. 25, 1914 said 'The back rooms of 445 of the saloons in Chicago contribute to the delinquency of more than 14,000 girls every 24 hours.'"

A representative of the American Legion declared that the American Legion of Indiana had passed resolutions disapproving the action of the National Convention, and further said they are not in favor of any modification of the 18th Amendment. Ten delegates were present from Bucks County.

PHILADELPHIAN IS SERIOUSLY HURT; HIT-RUN DRIVER

John W. Noble, 2608 N. 11th
Street, Now in Harriman
Hospital

ON BEAVER STREET

Police Called After Injured is Found by Pietro
Bianco

A Philadelphia man was seriously injured by a hit-and-run driver here last night.

John W. Noble, 35, 2608 N. 11th street, Philadelphia, is in the Harriman Hospital, with several broken ribs.

Noble was found lying on Beaver street, near the intersection of Jefferson avenue, by Pietro Bianco and other residents of that section. The man was in extreme pain and unable to move. His false teeth were lying in the road a short distance away.

Police were called and rushed Noble to the hospital where a hasty examination showed several ribs broken. An X-ray is to be taken today to determine the extent of the man's injuries.

According to Bianco and those residing near the scene of the accident, they heard a crash. Running into the street to see what had occurred they found Noble lying there and a car speeding along Beaver street. The car made a left-hand turn into Spring street and continued out Jefferson avenue toward Garden street.

There were pieces of glass found in the roadway indicating that the motorist's headlight lens had been shattered.

Noble, before losing consciousness, told the police that he had been visiting with Harry Pfeiffer at Harriman Park. He was walking from the Pfeiffer home when struck. He was on the right side of the road.

Noble was identified by cards found in his clothing upon which was his name and address. There was a request written on the card that "in case of accident notify John Carr, Acme Damp Wash, 2331 Jefferson street, Philadelphia." Police informed Mr. Carr.

At the intersection where the accident took place there is a street light. The roadway was somewhat slippery due to the rain. The accident occurred at about 10 o'clock.

Croydon Realtor Addresses County Board

DOYLESTOWN, Oct. 16.—Real estate bears 40 per cent of the tax load, it was pointed out Wednesday evening at a meeting of the Bucks County Real Estate Board which followed a dinner here.

"Taxation and Assessment" was the subject of a discussion by Otto Grupp, Jr., of Croydon, chairman of the taxation committee of the real estate board.

About seventeen per cent of the assessed valuation of the county, it was pointed out is exempt from taxation which adds that much more of a load upon those who are required to pay taxes.

Mr. Grupp gave the various definitions of taxes and means of collecting them. He described taxes from earlier ages to the present day, describing the changes which have been made.

He suggested for relief that there should be greater equalization of assessment. He thought a sales tax would be one of the solutions of the problem of relieving real estate of too large a proportion of the burden.

Thirty-one members of the board attended the meeting over which President J. Carroll Molloy presided. County Commissioners Ernest H. Harvey, William Schlichter and Clarence Benner were among the guests of the board. Others included County Engineer Roberts.

The next meeting will probably be a joint meeting with the Monroe County Real Estate Board which is said to have 100 per cent attendance at every meeting.

WORKS THE SAW

By "The Stroller"

The police officer always appears to be the butt of the joke makers when it comes to work, but if many of those who jolly the officers about working got as much exercise as the object of their wit they would be in bed for days at a time.

Yesterday one of Bristol's well-known and popular patrolmen, Daniel Ferry, got on one end of a cross-cut saw and cut-up telegraph poles for several hours.

There was a gathering of his friends who watched him work and they repeatedly kidded him about the exercise he was getting. They even went so far as to threaten to call the "Stroller" and give him the news, so here it is.

MISCHIEVOUS RUMOR

Most business in the United States is transacted on credit. Credit cannot exist without confidence. Therefore to destroy confidence is to impair credit and hurt business.

It is not attacks on the credit of a business or individual are, at any time, on the same moral plane as bribery, and during a business crisis border on treason. Betraying one's country to economic chaos is little better than betraying it to the enemy.

This is no time for speaking lightly of credit. The carelessly spoken word, the circulation of rumors for which there is no known foundation in fact, the whispered innuendo based wholly on uncorroborated hearsay, do incalculable harm not alone to the objects of often calumnious attack, but to the utterers.

Many a bank with frozen assets but otherwise as sound as a dollar during the last two years because some people talk more easily than they think. No small part of the business recession is due to garrulous pessimists.

Loose tongues should be stifled, alarmists squelched and the arch basis of business reinforced by universal individual effort. This is no time for yelling "Fire!" or for directing one's course by the principle of "every man for himself, and the devil take the hindmost."

"Interesting people" are those who take an interest in us.

A man isn't licked until he begins to complain about the rules.

Most of the work is done by people who are too nervous to loaf.

You don't have to nurse a grudge very carefully to make it grow.

Most people who have nothing to do make the mistake of doing it.

COMPANY'S COMIN'

READ THIS FIRST

At Monksilver, a country place outside London, Paul Federoff is slain after carrying the Czarina Rubies from Russia. The murderers fail to find the gems, which therefore must be hidden in the house. Frank Severn, who entrusted the rubies to Federoff in Russia, returns to England, is abducted and carried unconscious to Monksilver.

Meanwhile, his friend, Jim Wynter, meets beautiful Katharine Far- ing, rightful owner of the rubies, as heiress to the Russian prince who lost his life saving them from a mob. Once a concert violinist, she has been reduced to penury by an injury to her wrist.

Katharine suggests to Wynter that Severn may be imprisoned at Monksilver and he goes there at night, to find Severn's servant, Creyke, dead from a stab wound in a car inside the grounds. Hearing a groan within the house, he steals in, is attacked and falls downstairs. Hours later he regains consciousness in a strange house.

NOW GO ON

CHAPTER XVII

Into the room stole sounds of traffic from outside, as though the curtained window overlooked a busy street. Evidently then this could not be that house of last night. Though his clouded memory could not recall much about it, why he had gone there, or even its name, he did remember vaguely that it had stood far back from the road.

Then he became aware of a long, old-fashioned bell-rope hanging against the pretty chintz-patterned wallpaper at the head of his bed. It would be interesting to know who would come, to answer these perplexing questions for him if he were to pull that bell.

Wynter made an effort to reach out a groping hand for it but a sudden wave of dizziness made him fall back with a wincing groan.

BEWILDERED

And just then he seemed to see the door being pushed softly open. He lay watching it as it opened wider, wondering who would come in.

A girl's figure was framed in the open doorway—a girl he had never seen in his life before.

The face of the girl who stood there in the doorway was utterly strange to Jim Wynter, leaving him still without a clue to these bewildering surroundings or which he had opened his eyes.

Yet the mere creak of that opening door had been enough to quicken a dormant memory in the wearily groping mind; a swift vivid remembrance of how in the perilous dark of a strange house his footsteps had been arrested by the sound of a suddenly opened door... how he had stood waiting, holding his breath, not knowing who would come out from that door—but certainly an enemy.

That midnight adventure at Monksilver! In a flash those vague elusive scraps of memory had fused into a whole, all that had happened before that abrupt hiatus of consciousness back in his mind crystal-clear: how he had gone from Katharine Far- ing's flat to Monksilver... had caught that passing glimpse of the missing man in a car driven by Creyke... had found Creyke murdered behind the locked gates of that sinister house...

Well, at any rate, unlike that night at Monksilver, this opening door had not confronted him with an enemy.

The girl who, after her faint tap on the door, had opened it very quietly as if afraid of disturbing her patient should be asleep, glanced inquiringly into the room to meet his watching eyes.

"Good morning—if it is morning"

Wynter raised himself in bed with a painful effort, and drank the contents.

and not afternoon," Wynter said; his voice sounded thin and tired but it held a gleam of humor. "Please come in."

The door opened wider and a sympathetic voice spoke.

"Did I hear you call? How do you feel, now you are awake? How we have been so anxious about you, Mr. Wynter."

If her voice was attractive, its owner, who at any rate knew his name, was not a little attractive too. His aching tired eyes took in an impression of a tall, graceful girl with a mass of soft hair too pale for gold above an oval face at which most men would have stolen a second glance. More than pretty, Wynter thought, because there was character in the lines of the mouth and the tilt of the rather determined chin—a mouth touched by a little sympathetic smile as she crossed toward him in the subdued light of the room.

"Oh, I shall be all right soon, I expect, thanks very much. Just at the moment my head's singing like a prima donna, top notes and all—but that's hardly surprising, since my last recollection is of pitching down half a dozen stairs."

IN THE DARK

Even yet with the sound of her voice Jim Wynter found it difficult to shake off that old insistent sense of dream-like unreality—only that no one's head ever ached in a dream as his was aching, proof that this fantastic adventure was sober fact.

"But I'm hopelessly in the dark as to where I am or how I came here," he added. "I know I must have fallen into very kind hands, of course—but that's about all I do know."

"Yes, I suppose it must be a little puzzling," she said sympathetically. "You are in my stepfather's house at Staines—Dr. Martell."

It was a name quite strange to Wynter.

"Staines! But I was in Richmond the last I remember. How on earth did I come here?"

Almost as the feverish question broke from him another figure appeared in the doorway behind her.

"Here is my stepfather," the girl said.

Dr. Martell was a middle-aged man with a short pointed beard, who looked more like a foreigner than able way the tinted glasses he wore behind which one had the hint of a pair of keenly penetrating eyes strengthened that impression. But as he bent to speak to the man in the bed his English was perfect.

"So you are awake at last, Mr. Wynter—and not feeling too grand, I expect? Vastly puzzled, too, no doubt, to find yourself in strange surroundings?" said a pleasant, friendly voice, accompanied by a smile that seemed to radiate genial good humor. "Or perhaps my daughter Helen has explained? No! Well, you were brought here between the hours of 1 and 2 this morning. Why to me? Oh, because I happen to be a medical man, I suppose; I can think of no other reason. You had sustained an injury to your head—apparently only slight, I am glad to say—and on top of that you had been drugged."

"Drugged?" echoed Wynter, in surprise. "Good Lord! I do seem to have made a night of it!"

"Oh, the symptoms were unmistakable," Dr. Martell said with a smiling shrug. "A pretty stiff dose, too, it must have been. You've slept more than twelve hours—well, that's all to the good. You've probably left off the worst effects."

"Wish this splitting head of mine knew that," retorted Wynter with a smile. But the smile was a difficult achievement. Hammers pounding in his brain, more relentlessly than ever with the effort to exchange polite conversation with his host...

Dr. Martell nodded sympathetically.

"Oh, I think we might manage to do something for that. Don't talk or worry, but just lie quietly till I come back."

Jim Wynter was glad to let his throbbing head fall back on the pillows and close his eyes. Dr. Martell went from the room, to return in a few minutes with a glass full of something dark-colored and hardly inviting-looking.

Wynter raised himself in bed with a painful effort, helped by the girl's supporting arm, and drank the contents.

Something with more than a kick in it, whatever it was. It seemed as fiery as red pepper on his palate as he gulped it down, its potency making him gasp for breath.

"Now just lie quiet for a minute or two."

FASHION REVUE IS SIMILAR TO THE OLD FAMILY ALBUM

Ladylike Elegance of Past Periods is Again Brought To the Fore

By ALICE LANGELIER

PARIS, Oct. 16.—The old family album is almost synonymous with the smartest style revue this season, and while modern cuts have by no means given way to the extremely quaint and the billowy, every new arrival in the world of fashion continues to recall the ladylike elegance of past periods.

Touche of white on black are featured in the form of little bows, collars and the demure tippets and tuckers that look so delightfully old-world in the smart modern setting of the show-rooms on the rue de la Paix or the Faubourg St. Honore.

Lace, organdie, satin and white ermine are all used to give the note of white. An evening gown in black crepe has a tucker of crepe romaine and an afternoon gown of black velvet has the lace tippet definitely inspired from somewhere around the '80's.

Shirred elbow puffs, little accents of bright color, scarves with muff ends, piquant short gloves and engaging small furs—these are only a few suggestions of past modes.

Medici collars have flat bows of ermine and gros grain is used in the form of stiff little jabots and short gauds.

The longer sleeveless jacket of 1880 shape comes in colored cloth stitched and embroidered.

Victorian jewelry is being resuscitated in the shape of coral, gold and silver necklaces and also the delicate ching ones in floral designs. In some cases these are of glass with many shades introduced.

PHILADELPHIAN HERE

James Sackville of Cedar street, had as a guest over Saturday and Sunday, Raymond Runyan, of Philadelphia.

Mrs. Ida Ormsby, of Garden City, L. I., was a several days' visitor this week at the home of her cousin, William Silbert, of Radcliffe street.

Daniel Harnett, of Philadelphia, spent the week end in Bristol, as the guest of Edward McIlvaine, of 809 Radcliffe street.

AWAY FOR A TIME

Mr. and Mrs. James Ridge, Miss Cecelia Jeffries and Alexander McKay of Madison street, and Miss Anna Sackville, attended a farewell dinner given by Mrs. William Thorpe, of Philadelphia, in honor of her brother, William Elliott, who is leaving for his home in Scotland. Mr. Elliott is also a brother to Mrs. James Ridge.

Mrs. Grace Ferguson, of Philadelphia, is paying a visit this week to her relatives, Mr. and Mrs. John Gallagher, of 701 Pine street.

WEEK-END HERE

Mrs. Edward Doughty, and Mrs. John Elmer, both of Bristol, who are passing the winter months in Skillman, N. J., spent the week end at Mrs. Elmer's home on Cedar street.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR ACTIVE

A pie and cake sale is to be conducted by the Christian Endeavor of Bristol Presbyterian Church on Saturday, October 24th, in the Sunday School room. On Sunday evening the Christian Endeavor will discuss the talk of Warren P. Snyder, which proved so interesting last Sunday evening.

Simple but Chic

This charming street frock, displayed by Lilyan Toshman, screen star, is the last word in chic simplicity. Created in green woolen crepe, the bodice and hip-line are accented with lines of gold thread. The waist is circled with a belt of gold leather.

STATE NEWS

WILKES-BARRE—Men addicted to the indoor sport of wife-beating will find themselves on the receiving end in an outdoor sport known as "public flogging" unless domestic affairs in Freeland take a turn for the better.

That's a threat for the husbands and a promise to the wives of Freeland and emanates from Chief Burgess Thomas J. Lewis. An example will be made of the next paterfamilias adjudged guilty in the burgomaster's court of that offense.

ALLENTOWN—Michael Pfingstl, local storekeeper, was given a novel mystery of his own to solve when three men turned his shop into a receiving station for musical instruments.

A man brought two instrument cases into the store here and asked if he could leave them there while he made a few calls in the neighborhood. At midnight the man had not returned. Pfingstl opened the cases and found a banjo and a mandolin.

On the following day two young men dropped in with a pair of instrument cases and made a similar request. At 10 o'clock nobody had called for them, so Pfingstl investigated again.

He found another banjo and a mandolin.

NORRISTOWN—Montgomery county recorded something a little unusual when a second crop of strawberries was produced on a farm near here, but that even was shunted from the picture when Lena Robinson, Conshohocken, found a pear growing on a cherry tree in her garden.

The tree is 30 years old and earlier in the season produced its customary yield of pie cherries. A fully-developed pear now hangs from one of the limbs.

On Trial for His Life; Daughter His Accuser

Roy G. King, Principal Actor in Colorado "Lovers' Lane" Murder Drama, May Plead Parental Indignation in Slaying

ROY G. KING

Interest in the approaching trial of Roy G. King for the murder of Lewis J. (Buddy) Palmer, his daughter's suitor, is at fever heat in Colorado Springs, Colo., as the date draws near when the accused man will be given the opportunity to tell his story. Sharing the spotlight with King is his 16-year-old daughter, Glenda, on whose accusation he is facing the capital charge. One night, last July, Glenda appeared at a house on the outskirts of the city, driving young Palmer's car, in which lay the dead body of his owner. Questioned by the police, she told a tale of being held up by a roughly dressed man who shot and killed Palmer when he resisted. But on further grilling Glenda changed her story many times, until she finally broke down and named her father as the slayer of her "boy friend."

EASTON—J. Clem Kline, of Palmer township, is putting in a claim as the owner of the oldest family Bible in America.

Kline's Bible, printed at Frankfurt-on-Main, Germany, was completed in 1584, or 347 years ago, making it 14 years older than the volume found in Texas recently and reputed at that time to be the oldest known family Bible in existence, not only in America, but throughout the world.

The book, however, lost all but its American title later when another Bible, completed in 1569, was found in France. The one owned by Kline comes between these two.

The book has been excellently preserved. The original binding was of wood, according to the information that has been handed down, but in later years the wood was replaced by a leather covering. The Bible is illustrated throughout with colored prints which have retained all their original brilliance.

TOWN BRIEFS

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Frebe, Mrs. Fannie Singley and Miss Laurabelle Singley, of Beaver street, spent Sunday in Philadelphia visiting relatives.

Mrs. Ella Gerlick, Mrs. May Force and John Spangler, of Monroe street, motored to Hamburg on Tuesday where they visited Mr. Spangler's friends.

Tuesday was passed by Mrs. Chas.

Cullen and son James, of Pond and Lafayette streets, with Mrs. Cullen's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Dafter of Olney.

Mrs. Lillian Borchers and daughter Bertha, of Wilson avenue, were recent guests of Mrs. Ellen Daimedo, of Atlantic City.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Sharp and daughters Betty and Doris of Mill St., and Mrs. John Sharp and daughter Irene, of 632 Beaver street, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Gokler, of Yardley.

Mrs. Albert Wister and son "Bobby", of Harrison street, were visiting relatives in Philadelphia on Wednesday.

Albert Wister, of Harrison street, was host at his home on Sunday evening to a number of friends in celebration of his sixteenth birthday anniversary. The color note of the decorative scheme was pale blue. A large birthday cake bearing sixteen candles attracted much attention. The evening was enjoyably spent in dancing and playing games.

The guests included: Thelma Wallace, Esther Reynolds, Helen Arnold, Anna Carroll, Frances Ferrant, Dorothy Freese, Arthur Reynolds, Paul Moore, Raymond Kishpaugh, Charles Carroll, Robert Van Alken, and Harry Wister.

"Scotch Night" Features Exchange Club Session

Scotch Night was the designation given to the meeting of the Bristol Exchange Club last evening and it proved to be one of the most interesting gatherings of the club for some time.

The exercises began with the rendition of several tenor solos by William MacArthur, Atlantic City, N. J., which were followed by vocal duets by Mr. MacArthur and his brother, Andrew MacArthur, Edgely.

Wallace Tally, the little boy who sings so nicely over the radio from W. C. A. U., during the children's hour on Sunday afternoons, was the guest of the club, and sang several vocal solos. William MacArthur, who is a member of the Caledonian Band of Atlantic City, brought his bagpipes along, and played a selection. He was accompanied on the drums, by Leon Prickett, Bristol.

Hugh F. Monroe, Philadelphia, delivered a most instructive lecture on Scotland. He is a native Scotchman and thoroughly conversant with the history of his native land. He began with the origin of man and followed him through his various stages of evolution, until the development of the tribal family, or the Clan as it was called in Scotland. He said that "while all the other nations were developing the national spirit, Scotland held fast to its ancient custom of tribal families, which accounts for its slow development into a concrete and consolidated nation."

The speaker followed the development of his country after the Clans had become consolidated into a national unit, and recounted the many important things which the Scotch as a people, have given to the world.

It was a most instructive address, and from a historical standpoint, was teeming with information and knowledge, that could only be obtained from a native Scotchman.

Legislature Session Of Pa. in Limelight

Questions such as these already have been raised, portending another raking over via the forensic route in the legislative chambers.

Of the unemployment relief plans thus far advanced, all indications are that a plan put forward by Senator George Woodward of Philadelphia in his own publication, "The Pennsylvania Legislator," will come in for considerable attention. Senator Woodward advances no claim to originality for the idea which contemplates the enlistment of the unemployed in an emergency National Guard of Pennsylvania.

"Immediately there will be a sifting of the wheat from the chaff," points out Senator Woodward. "The enlisted men will be under military discipline, be well fed, comfortably housed, receive $1 a day, and, particularly, keep their self respect."

"They will build their own barracks. They will send $20 per month to their families. They will be trained not in arms but in the arts of livelihood."

"Instead of Johnny Jones losing his self-respect all winter and finishing the same, or a worse, Johnny Jones than when he began his free meals, he will come out a better Johnny Jones in mind, body and estate than when he went in."

All conjecture in regard to the extraordinary session is simply that—conjecture. There is only one matter that appears safe for prediction. That is that there will be very little unemployment and idleness among the legislators during the session. There is a job for all.

Nervous Woman Gets Sound Sleep At Last

Amazing Discovery, Born of the War, Makes Her Well and Happy

"I was shaky and weak, but the worst trouble was sleeplessness," writes Miss Francine Altman. "I tried everything but got no real relief until you gave me Vreem. It was astonishing how my nerves then steadied. From the very first night I could sleep soundly."

Vreem ends nervous troubles even when other remedies fail. It was developed during the World War to calm and restore the nerves of shell-shocked veterans. Now it is made available to every nervous person. Wonderfully as it acts, it is absolutely safe. Contains no dangerous drugs.

Don't be nervous any longer. Get Vreem today. See how quickly nerves become calm from the very first dose; how well you sleep; how irritability and temper vanish; how melancholy and blue fits go and you become a cheerful, happy person once more.

Vreem is guaranteed to delight you with its quick results or your money refunded. At Hoffman's Cut Rate Store. (Adv.)

Side Lights in The News of World Capitals

By ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—Senator Norris and Mr. Wickersham may be seen any day grazing peacefully together on a well kept Virginia lawn overlooking the broad Potomac.

They are pet lambs presented to Secretary of Labor and Mrs. Doak by friends for their Virginia estate, Notre Nid, (Our Nest) located near historic Arlington Cemetery. Senator Norris is black and Mr. Wickersham is white. Mrs. Doak insists they were named by their donors.

"We are very fond of them," she told recent guests. "They are really quite nice sheep. But every once in a while Senator Norris cuts up and gets into mischief and then we have to lock him up for a while. Mr. Wickersham is always a perfect gentleman."

Senator Gore, of Oklahoma, who served one term in the Senate, was defeated and then re-elected last year. Although blind he is one of the most zealous book lovers in the Capital. He has a library of over 50,000 volumes.

His constant purchases of new books is the despair of Mrs. Gore. His home here is piled high with them, and there are thousands stored away in the basement of the Capitol.

Whenever, in his travels, he comes to a new city, the Senator immediately makes inquiries about interesting book shops. He then browses about them for hours searching for desirable buys. He makes all purchases by his sense of touch.

Senator Gore is not the only blind man in the United States Senate. Senator Thomas Schall, (R) of Minnesota, starts his second term at the December session. Like his Democratic colleague Senator Schall is also a book-lover. He covers a wide range of reading through the aid of his wife who reads aloud to him.

For days Senate office building employees were mystified. Each morning they saw Vice President Charles Curtis descend from his vice presidential limousine arrayed in formal day clothes, high stiff collar, two-buttoned morning frock, striped trousers.

With the Capital still in summer attire it was very much a mystery. No conference or official function was in progress. Finally they appealed to a newspaper to uncover the explanation for the unusual attire.

"Going somewhere," the reporter inquired of the Vice President the next morning.

"Oh, no," Mr. Curtis explained with a touch of pride. "Just posing for my portrait. A famous German artist is painting me."

LANGHORNE

"Donation Day" for the Home for the Aged in Philadelphia, was observed at the M. E. Church, last Sunday morning. Large quantities of fruits, canned goods, jellies, etc., were contributed toward the worthy cause.

Clarence Downs and family, of Elgin, Ill., have been spending some time with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Downs.

An illustrated lecture on a tour through England, with Mrs. George Edward Phoebe, will be given on Thursday afternoon, Oct. 22, for the benefit of the Langhorne Library and Community Welfare Nursing Service.

Mrs. E. R. Gatchel has returned from a visit to her son in Wilkes-Barre.

John Fabian is building a bungalow on East Highland avenue.

Triemer Johnson, of Easton, a former resident of Langhorne, was calling on friends here on Sunday.

Mrs. Harry Meredith, who has been spending several weeks in Cleveland, Ohio, has returned to her home.

Harry Sealy, of New York, spent the week end with his mother, Mrs. J. F. Sealy.

Miss Alice Sealy entertained friends from Ardmore, over the week end.

Sees Gloomy End

H. G. Wells, distinguished English novelist, sociologist and out-liner of history, painted a dismal picture of the future as he arrived at New York aboard the S. S. Aquitania for a visit to America. He prophesied that the current depression would come to an end only after the entire Western civilization had collapsed.

Behind the Scenes in Hollywood

By HARRISON CARROLL.

Copyright, 1931, Premier Syndicate, Inc.

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 16.—Score up another one for Vincent Barnett, Hollywood's professional ribber.

At the behest of Douglas Fairbanks, he joined the backlot football team at United Artists and baited Johnny Mack Brown until the former all-American could scarcely contain himself.

The persecution began in Doug's dressing-room before the game. "Oh, I've heard about you," Barnett told Brown, "you're the professional ringer they put in at Alabama." Johnny held his temper, and even consented for Barnett to play center on his team. After that, every time Johnny carried the ball, Vince would roll it to him on the ground or toss it almost over his head.

Presently, Barnett inquired: "Are you sure you're Brown of Alabama? You're not Brown of Harvard, are you?"

It was about this time that Johnny hissed to one of the players: "If this guy wasn't a friend of Doug's, I'd punch him in the nose."

A few minutes later, Johnny was caught for a loss. Barnett shook his head. "You've never played football before," he said.

"Yeah," snapped Johnny, "well if you know so much, you pack the ball."

Whereupon, Barnett, with both teams in the know, promptly ran for 40 yards. "There," he said contemptuously, "that's the way it should be done."

Luckily, the game ended about this time. You should have seen Johnny's face when Barnett introduced himself.

THERE'S STILL HOPE FOR HIM
As Harry Brand tells it, a group at a Hollywood party were paning a certain actor for turning high-hat. Suddenly they became aware that the actor's sister was standing next to them.

As confusion reigned, she smiled and said sweetly: "That isn't so. I saw him on the boulevard today, and he waved to me."

STILL MORE GOSSIP.
It sounds weird, but I understand Jack Gilbert and Lupe Velez have been that way of late. Lupe didn't go to Europe after all. Jack, however, leaves on Saturday. . . . Yesterday was Carole Lombard's birthday. Husband Bill Powell gave her an antique silver service and a china set. . . . Hollywood's latest honeymooners, Lew Ayres and Lola Lane, are back in our midst. They are fixing up Lew's hillside house. . . . Jimmy Durante's new song is "What's Become of the Guy That Upped to Me Six Years Ago?" . . . Renee Adoree is making a steady gain in health. Doctors estimate she will be all right again in eight months. . . . Bebe Daniels is back home from the hospital. . . . After the World Series is over Mickey Cochrane, catcher for the Athletics, will visit Charles Farrell and Virginia Valli in Hollywood. He and Charlie went to school together at Boston University. . . . Conrad Nagel is building a market in Beverly Hills. . . . Maurice Chevalier has rented Joe Schenck's house in this home-city of the film folk.

WHY THEY STILL FLOCK TO HOLLYWOOD.
The Cinderella story is with us again. Cecilia Parker, Hollywood extra, has been put under contract by Fox and will play the lead opposite George O'Brien in "Rainbow Trail." Miss Parker is a Canadian girl, who came to Los Angeles with her parents a number of years ago. She was an extra in Frank Borzage's picture, "Cure for the Blue," when someone spotted her unusual talent.

CAN'T BELIEVE YOUR EYES.
It is easy to forget how real the movies are to the people out yonder. Warner Baxter tells me he has been besieged with pleas for help since playing the benevolent hero of "Daddy Long Legs." Orphans from all over the country have written him dozens of letters. The worst of it is, he can't possibly grant all the requests.

Incidentally, Warner is giving Fox to understand he won't make so many pictures next year. His idea of a proper number is four.

DID YOU KNOW—
That Lawrence Tibbett's brother, Jess, runs a borax mine in the heart of the Mojave desert?

Johnny Mack Brown.

VITAMIN LACK CAUSES SERIOUS DISEASES

Certain Vitamins Necessary in Order to Maintain Good Health

SOURCES ARE GIVEN

By E. V. McCollum, Ph. D., Sc.D.
School of Hygiene and Public Health,
John Hopkins University

There is an old saying: "Tell me what you eat and I'll tell you what you are." Modern medical science, backed by the findings of exhaustive research in the field of nutrition and foods, paraphrases it to: "Tell me what you eat and I'll tell you what you are." Of course there is the factor of being well born, of being well endowed physically at birth and also the handicaps which are imposed by a number of diseases due to infections in which food has nothing to do.

Within the past ten years it has been established that at least six different diseases including rickets, pellagra, beriberi, and scurvy are caused by a lack of certain vitamins in the diet. On the other hand, when these vitamins are restored to the diet, the sufferer is cured or appreciably improved. It has also been found that tuberculosis, diabetes, ulcer of the alimentary tract, anemias, acidosis, epilepsy, and kidney disease, can be benefited by specially planned menus. It is further believed that vitamin deficiency associated with faulty mineral metabolism is a vital factor in tooth decay.

Because of the rapid progress which has been made in the scientific knowledge of vitamins and their importance in relation to health and physical well-being, many people are still rather inclined to treat lightly the statements of medical men and nutritionists in this regard. In the first place, eating after all, is a universal experience. And for that reason many people have their own views, based on personal experience and, firmly fixed, as to what is "ent." He "knows what's good for him," he asserts, and continues to believe that appetite, custom, and the family budget are a satisfactory guide to the selection of the daily meals.

As a matter of fact, the average adult on an ordinary varied diet can now obtain through his food enough of all the vitamins to supply the minimum vitamin requirement and avoid serious diseases. Certain foods have no vitamins. Others contain an insufficient amount of one or another. No single natural food contains them all in sufficient quantity to make up the daily amount required by the average person. However, in practically all parts of the United States modern methods of food preservation and transportation now make available a plentiful supply of eggs, meat, green vegetables and salads, fruit and milk the year round so that the family table is supplied with practically all the vitamins except the sunshine vitamin D. Although there has hitherto been no food to provide enough of this vitamin, ordinary white bread can now be supplied with vitamin D, incorporated according to a process recently developed in the Nutritional Research Laboratories of the Paediatric Research Foundation of Toronto.

Vitamin A is a fat vitamin and is abundantly supplied in butter, whole milk, whole cheese, and egg yolk and also to some extent in vegetables—such as tomatoes, spinach, carrots, yellow corn, and yellow sweet potatoes. Among the results of a deficiency of vitamin A in the diet are low resistance to infections of eyes, ears, lungs, sinus and glands, retardation of growth and development, and secondary anemia.

Vitamin B is found most concentrated in wheat germ and in yeast and is not injured by ordinary cooking or baking temperatures. Its lack causes loss of appetite and energy, loss of weight, constipation and nervous disorders.

Vitamin C is known as the anti-scorbutic vitamin, and is found in orange, lemon and tomato juices, strawberries, bananas and other leafy green vegetables. As it is easily destroyed by heating or standing in air, its efficacy is impaired by home cooking.

Vitamin D is known as the sunshine vitamin because its main source is exposure to the rays of the sun. The old-fashioned panacea of "a good dose of cod liver oil" is the only other important source furnished by Nature. There is also a small amount in yolks of eggs and a small amount in whole milk under certain pasture conditions, but the recently improved bread is the only food source which supplies an adequate amount. This vitamin is now recognized as a preventive of rickets in children and a general health force for adults.

Vitamin E is found in wheat germ, several vegetable oils, milk, and green vegetables. Experiments within the past decade have demonstrated that a certain type of sterility in certain animals is shown to be a dietary deficiency disease which can be cured or prevented by a change in the diet to include this food factor.

Vitamin G, which is closely allied to vitamin B, is also found in wheat germ and in yeast in about the same ratio as B. It is fairly well distributed, too, in milk and vegetables. Lack of this vitamin causes the disease "pellagra", gastric disturbances, skin erythema and nervous derangement, and a certain form of melancholia.

Bond Bread now brings you the one SCARCE vitamin!

...sunshine vitamin-D

Read how vital this is to good teeth, straight strong bones and
HAPPIER HEALTH

YOUR physician or dentist, or the doctor who takes care of your baby, will tell you that good health, proper growth, sound teeth and strong bones depend upon getting plenty of sunshine vitamin-D.

And yet sunshine vitamin-D is the scarcest of all the vitamins. Your daily food provides plenty of all the others. But even the best diets have failed to furnish the amount of vitamin-D you need.

The direct ultra-violet rays of sunshine itself would be our best source of vitamin-D, if we could spend enough time outdoors. But we can't, or don't. That's why scientists sought a way to endow a food with enough sunshine vitamin-D. They found the way and chose Bond Bread for this great honor. As a result, just one or two slices of Bond each meal now give you all the extra vitamin-D you need. No other bread brings you this health-giving protective vitamin. No other table food gives you enough.

Study the table at left. You can rely on what it tells you. And then ask your grocer for sunshine vitamin-D Bond Bread. It's the same home-like loaf whose delicious taste and firm texture are assured by exclusive Flavor-Peak Rising.

THE BRISTOL COURIER

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INFORMATION

All ads are restricted to their proper classification and to the regular Bristol Courier style of type. The publishers reserve the right to edit or reject any classified advertising copy.

Errors in advertising should be reported immediately. The Bristol Courier will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion.

Advertising ordered for irregular insertions takes the one time rate. No ad is taken for less than a basis of three lines. Count five average words to the line. An average word contains six letters.

Charged ads will be received by telephone, and if paid at the Bristol Courier office within seven days from the first day of insertion, cash rates will be allowed.

Ads ordered for three or six times and stopped before expiration will be charged for only the number of times the ad appeared, and adjustment made at the rate earned.

Special rates for yearly advertising upon request.

Careful attention given to mail orders.

LADOMEQUE USURPS NICHE AS BEST MILER

By TED SMITS
(I. N. S. Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—A few days ago in Paris a French pistol cracked, a French stop-watch was set in motion, and a burly French athlete started spinning around a cinder track. A few minutes—a very few minutes—after the pistol had sounded, the athlete breasted a tape, the watch stopped ticking, and a group of French track officials gathered in an excited huddle—no one can imagine the amount of arm-waving and voluble protestations that French track officials could produce.

There was, let it be added, just cause for the French hysterics. One M. Jules Ladoumègue had just run one mile in four minutes, nine and one-fifth seconds—the least time any man has required to run that distance since first ponderous officials in silk hats started holding watches while slim young men ran their hearts and souls out for a gaudy medal and a strip of ribbon.

To say that the hurried footfalls of M. Ladoumègue running that epochal mile were heard as far as the huge Olympic Stadium in Los Angeles it was, that many men who know a great deal about cinder matters had come to regard as unbeatable.

Perhaps when the Olympic 1,500-meter men are called to their marks next year, Ladoumègue will not be able to duplicate that Mercuric pace. It isn't the kind of a pace that can be duplicated by simply wishing it. But Eino Purje, of Finland, or H. E. Larva, who wears the Olympic wreath now, or Carl Coan or Ray Conger, of America, or whoever the bright-haired boys will be next year, will scarcely enjoy the prospect of matching strides and stamina with a man who has run 4:09.2.

It almost seemed as if the great master knew it was coming—you can call him the great master, just as it is nice to refer to Connie Mack or Jack Dempsey in that same solemn, respectful way. For not so many weeks ago up in Helsinki this same Nurmi defied all the prophecies of old age by running two miles in a tiny fraction under nine minutes—another of those records that read like so much statistics, but that stab at the hearts of old and young track men.

They will be there at Los Angeles next year—Nurmi worn and tired, but still the first of the super-men, perhaps to add to his all too numerous Olympic laurels at 10,000 meters or maybe even the Marathon; Ladoumègue young and full of an ambition to snatch the 1,500 meter Olympic crown that Larva took from him in the last bitter strides at Amsterdam.

What a battle of the gods it would have been if the Nurmi of ten years ago, the sprinting Nurmi who made the mile just a flash of great brilliance, could have met the Ladoumègue of today, the mightiest athlete, so the stop-watches say, who ever ran one full English mile.

THREE GRID CLASSICS ARRANGED FOR PHILA.

By Gene Myers
(I. N. S. Sports Writer)

Philadelphia will be the scene of three football classics of exceptional interest this week as forty well-oiled grid machines, tempered by three weeks of competitive experience, battle on widely separated Pennsylvania gridirons.

Penn's meeting with Lehigh on Saturday will hold the spotlight but Temple's night fracas with Bucknell on Friday also will attract considerable attention. Both Temple and Bucknell have several men on the injured list and the battle may turn out to be an even fight. A rejuvenated Drexel eleven will tangle with the West Chester Teachers, also at Philadelphia.

Penn has been drilled on several new offensive plays during the week but it is not known whether they will be sprung against Lehigh. Little trouble is expected by the Penn eleven even without the services of Bill Graupner, quarterback, in the Lehigh skirmish and Penn is conceded the edge. Austy Tate has been working his Lehigh gridders strenuously and expects to put up a strong battle.

Penn's new plays, it is thought, will first be tested against Wisconsin, Penn's first tough opponent, a week hence.

With the bulwark of the Temple line missing, the Owls will meet a strong Bucknell eleven Friday night. Although four of the Bisons' squad have been on the injured list for some time, it is reported that the gridders will be back in the line-up for the Owl game. Under strenuous workouts by Coach Snively, the Bucknell line has been strengthened to a marked degree. The Bisons, with the mighty Hinkle leading the offensive, are given the nod.

The Pittsburgh-Western Reserve mix-up at Pittsburgh will eclipse western Pennsylvania football attractions. Pitt trounced West Virginia to the tune of 34 to 0 last week. With Warren Heller, veteran backfield ace and triple threat man in his prime, Pitt should down the Reserves.

Strong on offensive play, Penn State is expected to win over Dickinson, who got off to a rather poor start. Dickinson has plenty of reserve material, but the forward wall is not rated strong enough to dent State's line.

Muhlenberg is expected to turn back St. Joseph's College. Despite two defeats, the Mules have shown considerable strength in their games this season. Franklin and Marshall's eleven, which has surprised experts throughout the East, will engage Ursinus at Lancaster in the team's first Eastern Conference battle. Skilled in diversified offensive plays and deceptive passes, the Franklin and Marshall team is picked to win.

Exuding confidence because of a recent victory over St. Mary's College, Gettysburg is expected to upset Juniata College. The Sallets showed considerable backfield skill in the recent match and Shorty Eby, mainstay, has been performing in good shape.

Two teams, which have suffered defeats, Haverford and Washington, will line-up at Haverford Saturday. Washington, with a fairly strong line and backfield, is confident of bowling over Haverford. The game is a toss-up.

Aibright will manhandle the Pennsylvania Military College, dopests predict. The Reading aggregation has a strong line and fairly fast backfield, and expects little trouble in downing the P. M. C. squad.

Still smarting under a 16 to 0 defeat at the hands of Coigate, Lafayette will meet St. John's. However, with a day of rest, and considerable drilling on offensive play, Lafayette is favored in the match.

Drexel will tangle with Chester at

Pair of Record-Breakers

Pretty Veryl Pantages, who set a new record for Class A outboard motor boats in the U. S. championships held on Lake Merritt, Oakland, Calif., only to have her average speed of 37.113 miles per hour for five hours declared unofficial because there were less than five crafts in the race, is shown "grinning and bearing it" at the wheel of her speedster. Hilda Mueller (inset) established an official record for the same class boats when she averaged 35.78 miles an hour over the five-mile course.

That Big Stagg Party

By HARDIN BURNLEY

FORTY years ago, one of the finest of all college athletes—Amos Alonzo Stagg—soon after being graduated from Yale went West from those academic elms at New Haven, Conn., to join the coaching staff at the University of Chicago. "Lon" had done big things for Old Eli, especially in football and baseball. Back in '88 when some of the March blizzard's snow was still clinging to the wooden supports of the stands at old Yale Field, Stagg was becoming the greatest variety pitcher of his time. Why he fanned twenty Princetonians in a game that Spring! He took a divinity course intending to become a preacher but the third of tackles and the crack of the bat lured him to Chicago, where he's been teaching such ideas to shoot ever since.

Early in the century, Stagg's football teams were the most famed and feared in the nation. They reached apogee with the late Walter Eckersall performing as only an all-time quarterback should. Of recent years, Chicago has been lacking in rich grid material.

Saturday Yale plays Stagg's boys at Chicago. There will be banquets and other events commemorating "The Grand Old Man's" long, brilliant, and honorable career. "Lon" would sure like to see the Maroon wave above the Blue on this occasion, the Bulldogs' first invasion of Chi. However—with or without Albie Booth—Yale looks like the winner.

While the Chicago-Yale Stagg party holds the limelight in the "middle north," Tulane and Vanderbilt will bring two of the best Southern teams into conflict at Nashville, Tenn.; and Cornell will entertain Princeton at Ithaca, N. Y. "Vandy" will test the Big Green Wave's power thoroughly. The Cornellians, seeming better than in 1930, are likely to give that Princeton Tiger a fearful tail-twisting unless Old Nassau's freshmen of last year prove first-class variety replacements.

The Nashville and Ithaca contests should reveal clearly just about how much "class" the teams involved are likely to develop.
